THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1770.

Mr. TIMOTHY,

WE cannot have forgot how all the Tools of Oppreſſion clamoured againſt the General Reſolutions to diſuſe European Goods, while thoſe Reſolutions were forming; and how we were threatened with the utmoſt Weight of miniſterial Vengeance ſhould they take Place.

We were told, to petition humbly, for Redreſs of Grievances; but in the mean Time exhorted to acquieſce in, and ſubmit to, every parliamentary Regulation, as they were pleaſed to ſtile the moſt unconſtitutional Taxations.

The Americans were not to be thus fooled. With one Voice they declared for the Reſolutions; and the Event fully juſtified that Meaſure. The Arguments uſed, both by the Speakers and Writers in Behalf of the Repeal, ſhewed it to be a right one, being chiefly founded upon thoſe Reſolutions: The Merchants and Manufacturers of Great-Britain were obliged, by private Intereſt, to join thoſe who were bound by Principle, to take off our Burthens: The Miniſtry could not ſupport their favourite Act; they were reduced to the Neceſſity of ſearching for Means to blind and deceive the people: The Method adopted for that Purpoſe was, to take off all burthenſome Duties on America; but to retain that on Tea, which in Fact being leſs than had been formerly paid thereon, they hoped would not be thought of by America, but permitted to remain, and ſerve as a Precedent for new Taxations, whenever it might be thought fit to demand them.

Unfortunately for NEW-YORK, the Miniſtry were not wholly miſtaken; for, tho' the other Colonies ſpurned the inſidious Propoſal, yet ſeveral of the Traders and others of that City ſwallowed the Bait, and have, as far as their little Power extends, betrayed their Fellow-Subjects, and endeavoured to defeat the Intention of all America. This Intention was, to intereſt the Merchants and Manufacturers of Great Britain in our Cauſe; and no Man is ſo weak, as to ſuppoſe, that a Reſolution not to import Tea, can affect either one or the other, or reduce them to aſſiſt us in procuring that total Repeal of the Act, which alone ought to be conſidered as ſatisfactory, or in reſcuing us from that ten Thouſand Times worſe oppreſſive ARMY, and ADMIRALTY-COURTS. But thank God, tho' the Inclination of theſe Traders is great, yet their Ability is by no Means ſo. To prove this, let us look over the Names of thoſe who were for betraying their Country: We ſhall not find among them one Man of any conſiderable landed Property: The Families of Morris, Livingſton, De Lancey, and Ranſlaer's, are known to be the great Land-holders in that Country; no ſuch Names are there: If it ſhould be ſaid, that none but Merchants were concerned, it will appear to be a manifeſt Falſity, there being no more than 50 out of the 700, that can be called Merchants acting to their own Accounts; the Reſt being compoſed of Tradeſmen, Tea-Water and Car-Men, nay even of Women, in any Way connected with Trade, who have (as Eve was of old by the Serpent) been cajoled, in the Abſence of their Huſbands, to let their Names appear in the ſcandalous Liſt. Let us conſider further, what the Leaders of that Set were, and we ſhall find them to be the very ſame Party who had forfeited the good Opinion of their Fellow-Citizens, by baſely betraying them in Aſſembly, and agreeing to pay the Soldiers for remaining among them, to keep their Chains cloſely rivetted: A Party chiefly compoſed of Men, whom Poverty drove into that Province, where ſeveral of them have, by ſmuggling and ſupplying the Enemies of their Country with Proviſions, and other Neceſſaries of War, raiſed themſelves to Fortunes, which it would have been the greateſt Degree of Preſumption in them to have thought of before they left their own Country; where the utmoſt of their Ambition could not have exceeded the Honour of opening a Gate for their Landlord.

That ſuch Men ſhould be giddy, when raiſed to the Heights ſome of them have been, muſt be expected; and finding in their own little Minds no Merit to ſecure them in their preſent Stations, 'tis natural for them to catch at every Thing to prevent their Fall: Minds, which from their Infancy are taught to dread the Frowns of the petty Tyrants of their own Country, and to conſider nothing as mean or contemptible which produces Gain, cannot be depended on, in the Day of Trial. Such appears to be the Majority of the NEW-YORK REVOLTERS.

In Order to bring ſuch Men back to their Duty, it will be abundantly ſufficient, to make it their Intereſt; and this I think may be without Difficulty done.

Let our worthy Committee write immediately, in Conjunction with Philadelphia, to the Colonies of New-Jerſey and Connecticut, exhorting them in the ſtrongeſt Terms, to withdraw their whole Trade from NEW-YORK, particularly their Flax-Seed, the great Staple of the Iriſh Factors at New-York. As thoſe Colonies have Ports and Shipping of their own, they will, without Doubt, jump at ſuch a Propoſal. This Change in the Courſe of their Trade, far from being prejudicial, muſt be highly beneficial to them; and the People in Ireland, on being told the Reaſon of this Commodity coming to them thro' a new Channel, will doubtleſs approve of it, and confirm the Trade therein.

Let the Committee alſo write, to the Landholders, Farmers, and Mechanicks of ALBANY and LONG-ISLAND, and preſs them to meet immediately, at the moſt convenient Places, to ſtop all Intercourſe with New-York, and to take ſuch Steps as may be moſt proper for recovering the Backſliders. The firſt of theſe will doubtleſs imitate the Example of their Anceſtors the Dutch, who recovered their Liberty in much more deſperate Circumſtances; and the latter will ſcorn to diſhonour theirs, who bravely eſtabliſhed themſelves and their Liberties in the Deſarts of America, merely by their own Virtue.

And laſtly, let the Committee write to the Landholders, and Mechanicks at NEW-YORK, by all Means to CALL THE PEOPLE TOGETHER (a Step which we find the Revolters carefully avoided) lay the Matter fully before them, and zealouſly exhort them to recover their own Character, and that of their Country; by reſolving, never to have any Dealings with the Revolters; and oblige them to countermand their Orders for Goods, and to re-ſhip immediately all ſuch as may arrive. This the People have in their Power to do, and no Doubt will do.

If this can be effected, of which there is the higheſt Probability, our Country will gain everlaſting Honour; the Union and Strength of the Colonies will be greater than ever; and America muſt ſucceed, in her moſt juſt and reaſonable Attempts, for Redreſs of Grievances and Security of her Rights.

TIMOLEON.

CHARLES-TOWN, SEPTEMBER 6.

FROM North-Carolina we learn, that a malignant and contagious Diſtemper prevails in that Province, which is attended by a great Mortality: That they ſtile it a Weſt-India Fever, but it has extended itſelf to the Plantations: And that the Fate of the infected is generally known in 48 Hours.—We think it our Duty, not to ſuppreſs an Information of ſo much Conſequence.

So far are the People of this Province from ſhewing the leaſt Inclination to recede from any Agreements they have entered into, which can any Way contribute to the Preſervation of their juſt and conſtitutional Rights and Privileges, that no Attempt whatever, to evade, infringe or violate them, eſcapes the Obſervation and Inquiry of our WATCHFUL Committee. Even a Stranger, lately from London, who had ſecretly imported ſome Goods (as Baggage) for Sale, has been, within theſe few Days, detected endeavouring to diſpoſe of them, and has thought himſelf extremely fortunate, in being permitted voluntarily to engage to re-ſhip the ſame, and in getting off the Province; Another Perſon, who very indiſcreetly had offered to purchaſe the ſaid Goods, has alſo been diſcovered; made the fulleſt Confeſſion in his Power; and given a ſolemn voluntary Promiſe, that he never will again ſuffer himſelf to be unwarily drawn into ſo near an Approach to a Breach of our ſacred Reſolutions.

A Writer in the Pennſylvania Gazette of the 16th of laſt Month, who ſeems to aim at exciting the Pennſylvanians to copy the infamous Example of the New-York Faction, takes Notice by Way of Reproach, that "even the CAROLINIANS (notwithſtanding their patriotic Reſolves) have ſome Regard for their "private Intereſt;" Then aſks, "Pray how are we to account "for their ſending ſuch Quantities of Goods to this City? Is it "not for the Sake of Profit at this Time of Scarcity with us, "and to make Room for more, which their Agreement allows "them to import? And may it not be reaſonably expected, that "they will have freſh Supplies as ſoon as poſſible, proportioned "to their foreign as well as domeſtic Trade, which it is notorious "THEY, in particular, are ſo fond of carrying on." He then mentions, "30 Pieces of Oznabrugs advertiſed to be ſold at one "Vendue, which, excluſive of other Articles, muſt amount to "L. 220."—In Juſtice to the Carolinians, with whoſe Characters this Writer appears to be totally unacquainted, we muſt take Leave thus publickly to inform him, that no European or Eaſt-India Goods whatever have been ſent from this to Philadelphia, but ſuch as the Inhabitants of that City have ſent Caſh to purchaſe on their own Accounts, and under Certificates that they were ſhipped from England before the firſt of April laſt, they looking upon themſelves at Liberty to purchaſe Goods ſo ſhipped, from any other Colony, as conſiſtent with their Agreement. We muſt further beg Leave to acquaint the ſaid Writer, that it is notorious, the Carolinians in particular, are NOT ſo fond of carrying ſuch a Trade as he ſuggeſts, or ——

As little Foundation in Truth is there, for many Paragraphs inſerted in ſeveral late Engliſh Papers, evidently with a View to excite Jealouſies, and thereby ſhake the firm Union of the Colonies, "of large Entries for Exportation to the Continent of "America." And one in particular, which ſays, "Conſiderable "Orders are now executing for Georgia, and South-Carolina; "but there is almoſt an entire Stop put to the Trade of the more "Northerly Colonies."

The two Veſſels cleared in our laſt for Georgia, carried nothing contrary to our Reſolutions: One took in a few Britiſh Goods, ſhipped from England for that Colony; the other, ſome Neceſſaries for a Plantation there, owned in this Province.

On Tueſday laſt the Sloop Sally, of New-York, Jeſſe Hunt Maſter, arrived here from St. Auguſtine, having on board ſundry New-York Goods for Sale, and alſo Conſignments to ſome Perſons in this Town; but our late Reſolutions not admitting any Trade with New-Yorkers, he is to put to Sea again, the firſt fair Wind, on his Return Home, without Landing any Goods whatever.

The Sloop Hope (in our Liſt of Windbound Veſſels) William Tanner Maſter, for Rhode-Iſland, goes home in Ballaſt.—As ſhe belonged to Rhode-Iſland, ſhe only landed a Cargo of Melaſſes which ſhe had been long ſince chartered to bring from Dominica.

We have good Reaſon to believe, that the Colony of Rhode-Iſland will, by its future Conduct, make ample Atonement for its paſt Deſertion from the Common Cauſe of America.

Laſt Sunday died, aged 66 Years (41 of which he had reſided in this Province) Mr. William Carwithen, Librarian to the Charles-Town Library Society. And Yeſterday Mr. William Hurt was elected to ſucceed him.

On Monday laſt Charles Odingſell, Eſq; and Son, of Georgia, embarked for Boſton, in the Sloop Charles-Town, Capt. Durfee; as did Mr. Caſper Hafenclever, in the Sloop Meaſe.

The ſame Day put into Rebellion-Road, the Sloop Good-Intent, William Mackenzie, Maſter, from Cape-Fear, bound for Georgia.

Yeſterday William Gerard De Brahm, Eſq; His Majeſty's Surveyor-General for the Southern Diſtrict of America, arrived here in his Tender the Wren, employed in ſurveying the Coaſt, having been obliged, by Streſs of Weather, to put into Savannah-River, as well as here; but is to proceed on the Survey again, as ſoon as the Sun has croſſed the Equinox.

This Morning embarked for Philadelphia, in the Brigt. Prince of Wales, Capt. Moore, John Hughes, Eſq; Collector of His Majeſty's Cuſtoms for this Port (who has left Thomas Macdonogh, Eſq; to act as Deputy during his Abſence) Meſſrs. James Gadſden and John Torrans (Merchants) Mrs. Torrans; Mr. Edward Weyman and Miſs Weyman, Edward Harleſton, Eſq; Mr. Elias Ball, Jun.—Mr. Phipps, and ſeveral other Paſſengers.

Price of RICE 45 to 50*s.* per 100 lb.—Quantity exported ſince 1ſt of November laſt, 124,043 Barrels.

NEW-YORK, AUGUST 20.

Meſſrs. PRINTERS,

The following is the copy of a letter wrote by the merchants of the city of Albany, to the committee of merchants at New-York, which you are requeſted to inſert in your next paper, and you will oblige many of your conſtant readers.

"GENTLEMEN, Albany, Auguſt 7.

WE received the advice that you had receded from the non-importation agreement, with all that ſurprize that muſt naturally ariſe from ſuch an unaccountable duplicity of conduct, as you have held on this occaſion; a conduct ſo replete with inconſiſtency and injuſtice, and with a ſtrange mixture of temerity and puſillanimity, that we beheld it with equal horror and deteſtation.

"In your firſt letter to us on the ſubject of the non-importation agreement, you urge the neceſſity of reſtricting the importation of goods, "As the only meaſure which could relieve the colo-"nies, as the moſt certain and effectual means of procuring a "repeal of the act, impoſing duties on paper, glaſs, &c. &c." We ſaw the propriety of the meaſure; we felt the force of your reaſoning; we adopted your ſentiments; and we concluded with you, "that united we might preſerve our invaluable liberties and "privileges; but divided, muſt ſubmit to the oppreſſions impo-"ſed on us." And therefore we readily and chearfully embraced the meaſure, not in the leaſt doubting, but that your intentions were diſintereſted, fair, and uninfluenced by ſelfiſh motives: Alas! the event has but too fatally evinced that our confidence was ill placed; and that the information which we received in May laſt, that the merchants of New-York and Boſton intended to import every thing but the ſingle article tea, was well grounded with reſpect to many of the former, and was the only reaſon which induced us to a precipitate and inconſiderate annulling our former agreement; but happy for us, and happy would it be for you, gentlemen, if you would follow our example, kiſs the rod, and demean yourſelves on the receipt of this letter, as we did on that of yours of the 26th of May laſt, that is, to retract your reſolution to import, and to abide honeſtly by your former agreement; indeed, gentlemen, "we flattered "ourſelves that you would, before you came into ſuch haſty and "unwarrantable reſolutions, have at leaſt conſulted with, and "have had the approbation of, your brethren and friends of "Boſton and Philadelphia;" and we too, gentlemen, who are equally intereſted in the event of this conteſt with you, might have been adviſed with on this occaſion: But waving this, permit us to aſk you in your own words, "If there was any uſe in your "adopting the meaſure at all, unleſs you intended ſteadily and "virtuouſly to have perſevered in it until the end was attained at "firſt propoſed by it?" nor do you leave us in the leaſt doubt, that the end which you pretended you meant to attain, was a total repeal of the revenue act; for you add, "as it is far from "being impoſſible that the duty on tea may be repealed before "the expiration of the preſent ſeſſion of parliament, it appears "very improper to us here to make any alteration or deviation "in our non-importation agreement, until we know with cer-"tainty whether the duty on tea is taken off or not; if it ſhould "we have ſaved our credit, and may begin our importation with "honour; if not, we ſhould act in concert and preſerve good faith "with our ſiſter colonies, and not arbitrarily take upon us to act "independently of them." Here, gentlemen, you fully explain the intention of the non-importation agreement, you clearly point out the end propoſed, and ſtrongly inculcate the neceſſity of a uniformity in conduct as well as in ſentiment, and juſtly recommend that good faith and mutual dependance, which is ſo highly meritorious in compacts of this kind: But have you, gentlemen, adhered to your own doctrines? We wiſh for your own ſakes, as well as for your injured country's ſake, that you had not "deviated "from them, that you begun your importation with honour:" We wiſh you had been as tenacious of good faith, as you have been liberal to preach it to others: We wiſh that you had acted in concert with, and not arbitrarily and independently counteracted the other colonies, "whoſe unanimous ſentiments (you ſay) "was firmly to adhere to the non-importation agreement, with-"out the leaſt alteration or deviation." We wiſh that ſuch of you to whom this is juſtly applicable, had ſhewn an equal firmneſs with the inhabitants of the other colonies, of which in your letter of the 8th of June laſt, you tell us, "there is no doubt "but you would." Such a firmneſs would have prevented you from ſtanding as a foil to your virtuous neighbours, whoſe perſeverance for the relief of their country receives an additional luſtre from your unaccountable defection; a defection ſo much more pernicious in its conſequences, as others who abhor and deteſt the thought of importing goods in the preſent ſtate of things, will, from their ſituation, be neceſſarily carried along with you, and involuntarily be aiding in your deſtructive plans. It would give us pleaſure, if we had it in our power to name the perſon amongſt you (if any there was) whom you ſuppoſe led us into that tranſient error of voiding our agreement in May laſt; but if there was ſuch an one, he muſt have been well informed with reſpect to the intentions of many at New-York; and it is now but too evident, that your reſentment againſt him proceeded from his having officiouſly, as you thought, revealed a deſign, for the reception of which you had not quite prepared the public, and of which you intended to take an advantage. In ſhort, gentlemen, you have brought a ſtain upon yourſelves, which nothing but a ſincere repentance, and a directly contrary conduct to what you now hold, can wipe away; you ſeem to have ſhopped your ears to the voice of liberty, to the cries of your injured country! You have been culpably active in aiding the greateſt enemies of our happineſs to accompliſh their ends; if you continue to purſue the ruinous plan you have adopted, you will leave as a legacy to your poſterity, ſlavery, poverty and oppreſſion: May heaven avert it! May it inſpire you with courage to repent and turn from your evil ways, that you may not be excommunicated from that glorious ſociety the REAL Sons of Liberty: To this end we entreat you to join in prayer with us; the form ſhall be one of your own compoſing; it is a good one, and as it anſwered the purpoſes for which it was originally intended, we ſhall hope for the like effect on this occaſion. With ſincere hearts let us therefore pray, "That you will not perſiſt in reſolutions "ſo derogatory to yourſelves, and ſo ſubverſive of the liberties "of your neighbours, but that you will, re-conſider the nature "of your obligations to them, and that if any of your merchants "have already ſent forward their orders, they will countermand "them by the next opportunity, and not again ſend for goods "until they ſhall hear it is reſolved on at Philadelphia, Boſton, "&c." After ſo ſolemn a ſervice, we would not diſturb your meditations by any further animadverſions, and therefore we ſubſcribe ourſelves, Gentlemen,

Your moſt obedient humble Servants,

HA. GANSEVORT, BARENT TEN EYCK,
VOLCKERT P. DOUW, GYSBERT FONDA,
HERMANUS WENDELL,

P. S. We deſire that this letter may be publiſhed, in order to ſhew the ſenſe of the merchants of this place, on this occaſion.

To Meſſrs. Iſaac Low, Thomas Franklin, jun. Samuel Verplanck, Iſaac Sears, and other the gentlemen, committee of merchants at New-York.

At a meeting of the merchants at Hartford, in Connecticut the 4th inſtant, it was reſolved that they would withdraw all commerce from the inhabitants of New-York unleſs they countermanded their orders ſent to England for goods; but another general meeting was appointed the 9th following of the landholders of the county.

PHILADELPHIA, AUGUST 23.

Extract of a letter from London, May 19.

☞ Neceſſary to be read with particular Attention.

"——— As American affairs are cloſed for this ſeſſions of parliament, and I wiſh you ſhould have the earlieſt and moſt authentic intelligence of their ſtate, I have taken up my pen again. Mr. Burke, at the head of the oppoſition, brought into the houſe of commons the motions mentioned in the votes, which I here incloſe to you—their fate you will ſee—both Burke and Barré ſignalized themſelves, but what can eloquence or argument do againſt a corrupt majority. Yeſterday the ſame reſolutions, or nearly of the ſame import, were brought into the houſe of Lords by the Duke of Richmond, ſupported by the Lords Rockingham, Temple, Shelburne, and Lyttelton. As Lord Hillſborough's conduct in his department for America was particularly aimed at, it behoved him to vindicate himſelf from the heavy charges of inconſiſtency, abſurdity, and malignity towards the colonies, which his antigoniſts contended were clearly proved from his letters to America, and the ſpeeches made by the Governors of Georgia, North-Carolina, and Virginia, reſpecting the repeal of the duty acts. Thus circumſtanced, Lord Hillſborough was obliged to enter into a particular detail of his paſt conduct, his motives, views and intentions both for the preſent and future, as far as he could now determine. And as the ſentiments of this Lord may well be ſuppoſed to be thoſe of the miniſtry, and the reſult of the many conferences lately held reſpecting America, I think the communication of them cannot be too particular or too univerſal. He began by declaring his opinion that he thought the Americans intitled to every priviledge of Engliſhmen, though bound in every reſpect by the acts of the Britiſh legiſlature, and that he thoroughly agreed with the declatory law in that reſpect; that he was not preſent when the ſtamp-act was repealed, and whatever his opinion of the expediency of that law might be, he ſhould have ſpoke, voted and proteſted againſt the repeal of it, as breaking that great chain which binds this country and the colonies together: He then entered into the conduct of the Americans ſince the impoſition of the duties on paper, tea and glaſs—which he ſaid was highly approved by the MERCHANTS of America, and but for a few factious men, would never have been oppoſed—That it had been the object of every miniſter ſince the reign of Charles the II. to endeavour to ESTABLISH A CIVIL LIST IN AMERICA, INDEPENDENT OF THE ASSEMBLIES, that IT WAS HIS GREAT OBJECT, and though the duty act was an anti-commercial one, and therefore proper to be repealed ſo far as regarded the manufactures of Great-Britain, yet he ſhould keep in view the INDEPENDENCE OF THE CROWN INTEREST, as the only one on which this country could depend—He then expatiated on the encroaching temper of the Americans, and read off a reſolution of the town-meeting of Boſton, that they were bound by no laws but when repreſented; he ſaid they had riſen from one demand to another—firſt, that the act impoſing duties on paper, glaſs, &c. ſhould be repealed, then that all acts raiſing a revenue ſhould be repealed—and would never ſtop till they could get rid of the act of navigation which ſat ſo uneaſy on them, and then entirely rid themſelves of all ſubjection to Great-Britain—That theſe deluſive ridiculous hopes were created by letters wrote from from this ſide the water, the writers of which were traitors, and deſerved to be impeached, that the miniſtry at no time intended to repeal the whole duty act, though ſo many letters to that effect had been wrote—That all the combinations not to import goods were idle, and he hoped the merchants and manufacturers of this country had more ſenſe and virtue, than for the ſake of ſhipping £.20,000 worth of goods, to give up forever the AUTHORITY and CONTROUL of this country. That patriotiſm would riſe to a certain height, and continue a certain time, but intereſt would in the end overturn it.—That it already did ſo—Rhode-Iſland was running away with the trade of New-England, and the merchants in other places were undermining one another, ſo that with a little patience all theſe combinations would diſſolve of themſelves—As to his letters, he was contented to take the whole blame of having wrote them illy, if it was ſo—but that diſſolution was the invariable meaſure purſued on the ill conduct of aſſemblies, of which he gave ſome inſtances—That as to the late tranſaction of Boſton, he was not prepared to give any opinion till further advices came, but he moſt heartily pitied the ſituation of a ſoldier, if he muſt ſtand till he was beat to the ground without making any reſiſtance—That as to a civil magiſtracy there was none; though it had been his intention previous to ſending the troops, to bring in a bill to remedy that defective part of the conſtitution, which made the council of Boſton creatures of the aſſembly, the juſtices creatures of the council, &c.—That as to a miniſter's writing to America that a repeal of any act would be recommended, it was what any peer might do, and he ſaw no impropriety in it—That upon the whole a republican ſpirit prevailed through the colonies, which every adminiſtration muſt diſcourage; and as to his having no plan with regard to America, he confeſſed he had none, but to maintain their conſtitutional dependence, and the authority of this country to its fulleſt extent—That with regard to ſending troops to America, the King had a right to ſend them to any part of his dominions—As to the inconſiſtency and irreſolution of his conduct he ſaid nothing—From this, which is almoſt a tranſcript of his ſpeech, you may judge what our unhappy country is to expect from adminiſtration. Lord Rockingham obſerved that the wealth of America ſhould flow through trade—That he had rather ſee half a ſum ariſe from the induſtry of the inhabitants than the whole from taxes.—In ſhort, we have nothing to depend upon but the virtue and reſolution of the collective body of the people of America.—The ſtorm that I fear begin in ſmoke, and every, even the ſlighteſt influence of unreaſon is magnified to a prodigious height—Our patriotiſm and virtue are treated with the utmoſt contempt by the miniſterial minions, while our few ſincere friends are anxiouſly waiting to ſee how theſe predictions are verified—The merchants and manufacturers are amuſed with expectations of our inability to adhere to our agreement, and preſſed moſt earneſtly to wait the event. The merchants of London think that the principle of taxation belongs wholly to the agents, and that as the application from the colonies is not upon commercial principles, they are excuſed—while the agents—but I forbear—"

PHILADELPHIA, AUGUST 30.

Thurſday laſt arrived here the Brigantine Dolphin, Captain Stephenſon, from London. She has no goods but ſuch as are allowed by agreement, but has brought a number of Weavers, and other Manufacturers; together with about 6000 l. ſterling, in ſpecie, the property of perſons in this place: Such is the fruits of the agreement, that inſtead of dry goods, which drained theſe colonies of their caſh, and kept them as poor as beggars, they are now receiving from England, what may well be termed the nerves and ſinews of every country.
